Fake news is a serious problem. Because of the Internet, it is very easy to make and share fake news.

Fake news is designed to fool people. Its headlines are often used to interest you, make you believe stories, and then make you share them. So, first take a moment³ to check the news before you share it with other people. The tips below will help you fact-check news.

① Is the news from a trusted news website?

If you are not sure, go to “About Us” to dig deeper about the website.

② Does the piece of news show the writer's name?

If there is no writer's name, do not believe it.

It means that we cannot find any information about the writer.

③ Can the same news be found on other websites?

Search Engines are great tools. You can search for the news with keywords. If you can't find any other information about the news, or if it is very different, then the news could be fake. Don't get too excited about this kind of news. It may be fake. From now on, make it a habit to fact-check the news. Use these tips to help you!

- () 1. According to the reading, which does NOT help us fact-check news?
- (A) Make sure that the writer's name is shown.

Sean Brown works as an English teacher in Hope High School in Taiwan. Two students are interviewing him now.

Tom: Why did you come to Taiwan?
 Sean: Two of my college classmates are from Taiwan. They invited me to work in their country. So here I am.

Sam: How long have you been working in Taiwan?
 Sean: I've been here for one year and nine months.

Tom: What do you think of the students here in Taiwan?
 Sean: Many of them are hard-working. They listen carefully in class and do quite well on the tests. But when they are asked to talk about their thoughts, they are often too shy to speak out what they think about the issue. That really surprised me at first.

Sam: Do you miss your family in the UK?
 Sean: Of course, I miss them so much. Luckily, I can talk with them on the cellphone anytime, and they get to know everything about me on my Facebook. Last month, my parents and my brother, Jack, flew to Taiwan to visit me. I showed them around. They were so impressed about this island that they promised to come every year as long as I'm working here. Some of my students' parents invited all of my family to spend the weekend with them. How warm-hearted they were!

Tom: Will you go back to the UK?

Sean: Maybe, but I'm not sure. Whether I'm here or not, I'll miss this island and the friendly people here.

Sam: Thank you for the interview.

Sean: No problem. Nice to talk to you.
